Kindle grew up in a priveledged family. His Father was high wizard, his mother a high priestess. As he aged, his parents each tried to secretly sway him to their "better way". Each stressed why the other's practice was worthless, theirs superior. Kindle's parents were also overprotective. He grew up home-schooled, rarely allowed to go outside. He didn't mind. The mixture of his teachings allowed him to summon his own companions, and the lessons they taught him were intoxicating. That life is behind him now, those bridges are burned. Everything burns. Today, Kindle makes his living in the days as an interpreter, mainly for the church. The possessed always seem to speak in the strangest voices. By night, Kindle makes considerably more money. His skills eliminate the need for keys or thieves tools, but he can do so much more. Prison walls, bank vaults, corpses. Everything burns.
